

Biographical Information For Godfrey The Magician

After graduating from high school, Godfrey traveled with a small sideshow, “Circus of the Fantastic.” On the show was Spongy the Sponge Girl, whose body was made out of sponge; Miss Electra, who could take 50,000 volts of electricity through her body; and Amanda the Indestructible Child, who could walk barefoot on a ladder of razor sharp swords.

He performs over 300 shows each year all around the entire United States at fairs and festivals. He has been a professional magician since 1982. He is very versatile and can entertain on stage or right up close where the magic happens in a person’s hand. He has performed on TV a lot and can even amaze listening audiences on the radio with magic.

He won award for being the funniest magician in San Diego at the International Brotherhood of Magicians Convention, which is the largest magic convention held in the United States. His many other awards include the Danny Dew Award in Manipulation which he won two years in a row and Close-Up Magician of the Year in San Diego, California.

He has opened for numerous stars and celebrities, Weird Al Yankovic being his favorite. Godfrey was featured on a TV show called “Small Town Big Deal” because of his unique shows consisting of comedy, magic, escapes, and audience participation that he performs at fairs.

Godfrey became interested in magic by reading books in the school library when he was 7 years old. He would go to the library because his asthma prevented him from participating in physical education classes. Since that time he has collected over 2,000 books on magic.

He is also the author of The Ultimate Entertainment Plan, which is a book that teaches fairs how to use entertainment to its fullest potential. Godfrey also teaches other entertainers from around the world how to be better performers and how to really connect with their audience by thoroughly entertain the people.
